

Andrew Lewis

Andrew Lewis is the partner-in-charge of KPMG LLP's Federal government audit practice. He is a senior fellow in KPMG's Government Institute and has published numerous articles on ways to enhance the transparency and accountability of federal financial management information, and the future of auditing using technology and robotic process automation. Andrew is the past national treasurer of the Association of Government Accountants (AGA), and the co-chair of the AGA's National Leadership Development Committee. He is the past chair of the Federal Issues and Standards Committee of the Greater Washington Society of CPAs, and a former adjunct professor of government accounting at The George Washington University. Outside of work, Andrew and his family are active in the foster care community.