

GREGORY H. FRIEDMAN
INSPECTOR GENERAL, DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS

Vice Chair of the President's Council on Integrity and Efficiency
Member of the Advisory Council on Government Auditing Standards
Member of the Recovery Accountability and Transparency Board

Gregory H. Friedman was nominated by the President and confirmed by the U.S. Senate as Inspector General of the U.S. Department of Energy in 1998. Mr. Friedman started his Federal career in 1968 and has been with the Department of Energy, Office of Inspector General, since 1982.

As Inspector General, Mr. Friedman is responsible for a nationwide, independent program of audits, inspections, and law enforcement efforts related to the Department of Energy's programs and operations, including its over $130 billion in assets and 107,000 Federal and contractor personnel. In addition to his responsibilities as Inspector General, Mr. Friedman serves as a member of the Recovery Act Accountability and Transparency Board, which manages the Recovery.gov website and oversees spending under the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009.

In 2002, Mr. Friedman was named by the Comptroller General of the United States to serve as a member of the Advisory Council on Government Auditing Standards. From 2005 to 2008, Mr. Friedman served as Vice Chair of the President's Council on Integrity and Efficiency, then the parent organization of the 11,000 member Federal Inspector General community. He led the development of the "Federal Audit Manual" to provide universal guidelines for conducting Federal financial audits for the first time.

Mr. Friedman has been a guest lecturer on topics such as audit policy and procedures, government integrity and oversight, and program evaluation. In addition, Mr. Friedman is a member of several professional organizations, and has served in leadership positions in the Association of Government Accountants and the Institute of Internal Auditors. Mr. Friedman has also been active in a number of community and philanthropic organizations.

Mr. Friedman has received numerous awards, including the Department of Energy's Meritorious Service Award, the Meritorious Presidential Rank Award, and the Presidential Rank Award for Distinguished Executive. In 1979-1980, Mr. Friedman was selected as a Princeton Fellow in Public Affairs and spent a year in residence at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School for Public and International Studies.

Mr. Friedman received a Bachelor's degree in Business Administration from Temple University and a Master's degree in Business Administration from Fairleigh Dickinson University.